

Acknowledgements

The conference chairs are deeply thankful to many people who helped us to make the conference a reality. First and foremost, we would like to thank the members of the Organizing Committee, the Program Committee, the prize judges, and all the many reviewers for their time and effort. The large number of submissions was a tremendous logistic challenge for all of us. We want to thank all those of you who were involved in the reviewing process for your thoughtful, comprehensive, and helpful reviews. We know many of you were deluged with requests for meta-reviewing or reviewing and had some trouble to find appropriate reviewers or to handle all requests for reviewing. Thank you for being so cooperative and patient. You can find the names of the program committee members on page 65 and all reviewers are listed in the conference proceedings.

We are also deeply thankful to many other people who helped us with the organization of the conference. Specifically, we want to thank Kai Hamburger for supporting the conference chairs during the submission and reviewing process and Anna Strasser for her unfailing support with all issues related to the local organization. We thank Andy Stull, the CSS conference officer, for his support with all business related issues and all matters having to do with the budget of the conference. We thank Deborah Gruber, the Cognitive Science Society Business Manager, for helping us with the bureaucracy, the Scarritt Group, Inc. for the logistics management, and James Stewart from Precision Conference Solutions for his prompt help to keep the reviewing website running. Finally, our thanks go to Humboldt-Universität and the Berlin School of Mind and Brain for hosting this conference and, last but not least, to our sponsors for giving us the possibility to support students from all over the world to attend the 35th Annual Conference of the Cognitive Science Society.
